An Exhibition of Imported

Costumes, Wraps, and Blouses

UR personally selected European Models in Women's Outside Wearing Apparel are on exhibition to-day.

We have made very special efforts this season to obtain the finest examples of fashion's latest dictates, and the result we place before you with perfect confidence of your approval and appreciation.

The collection consists of garments selected by us personally-being the best productions of the leading modistes of Paris-and suitable for all formal and informal occasions.

The styles are numerous and varied-almost bewildering-and to attempt to describe all would be to confuse, but through the whole gamut of models is plainly visible the barbaric charm.

For several years past the tendency has been like a great reversion back to the brighter colors and decorations of early centuries and to the brilliant strappings of primitive charm. And this year that tendency is stronger than ever.

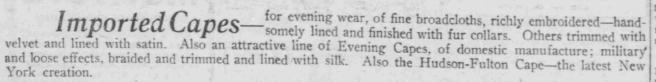

The Gallic touch, and this is the peculiar combination in fashions this season—the virile flash of the barbaric, mellowed and refined by the cultured touch of the artistic French of to-day.

The Russian Blouse is here again, but the same tunic, girdled at the waist, is worn by the Norwegian and Swedish peasants. The lavish use of fur is Russian; but it is also Danish, and even Eskimo.

The Polonaise (Polish tendency-also semi-barbaric) is revived in a number of ways. But the 1910's Polonaise is quite different from the Polonaise of the fifth century. Very soft, graceful, and unexaggeratedand quite artistic. It does not destroy the pretty lines of the figure with its loops and curves and undulations.

Also the Merovingian and Carlovingian periods have been called upon to supply new style and beauty for women's dress.

And yet, through all this splendor of barbaric style, with its accompanying bright colors and gorgeous trimmings, will be plainly visible that subtle and charming element—"simplicity.

Tailored Suits—in two and three piece models, of rich chiffon broadcloths, velvets, diagonals, serges, and cheviots, two-toned hopsacking, &c. Some plainly tailored, some braided; others hand-embroidered, with trimmings of jewel buttons, Oriental braids, velvets, and silks. Coats are long; skirts plaited and gathered.

for motoring and traveling, of English cheviots, broad-wale diagonals, Talbott, will take place to-day at Bards- fast it is going, the click of the telegraph town, Ky., the date chosen being the key under the finger of an industrious New Coats— and traveling, of English theviols, broad-wate diagonals, &c., lined throughout with silk, and finished with fur or velvet collar. Also of tan cheviots, partly lined. Also Black Broadcloth Longcoats, for wear over opera costumes; some the bride. handsomely braided, others richly trimmed.

New Blouses— of chiffon cloths, silk jerseys, messaline silk, chiffon taffeta, and mer, of South Carolina, and Mr. James all-over braided silk jerseys. Also of rich Persian and Dresden silks. Horace Patten, of Washington and Bostables of squares, and other things unbe-

New Furs— Furs, always fashionable, will be more so than ever this season, because of the abundant use of fur on the new costumes, wraps, and millinery. And the prospective bride will be attended by her sister. Miss Anne B. Lation account of the large shapes in hats the fur pieces are much larger. Handsome sets of Russian Sable, Hudson Bay Sable, Fisher, Skunk, Ermine, White Fox, &c. Also Long Coats of Hudson Bay Seal, Baltic her sister, Mrs. L. Martin Heard, of nected with a flight he made in the morn-Seal, French Seal, Arcadian Seal, Caracal, &c. Also separate pieces-muffs and scarfs-in large variety.

Misses' Garments— on every side—grace, beauty, richness, and newness, with bert, of Summerville, S. C.; Miss Anderthe spirit of Paris evident even in the simplest garment.

Spartanburg, S. C.: Miss Connally of Spartanburg, S. C.: Miss Connally of Moyen Age is the keynote, but softened and modified by a score of useful graces. Misses Costumes of Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Marsh, of Chicago; Chiffons, Messalines, Nets, in the long-waisted effects, braided, hand-embroidered, draped, and trimmed Miss Todd, of Augusta, Ga.; Miss Oeland, shaft and the oil cups removed. Tested for Speed.

Considerable time was spent in testing to about a third by the sprockets.

In the morning, before the rain had commenced to fall, Mr. Wright made a flight of two minutes' duration, in which he set a new mark for speed in making a short circle. He made a complete circuit in 0:17 3-5, and immediately after made another one in 0:19 1-5. The circles were estimated to be about 275 feet in diameter. The performance showed the control Mr. Wright had of the biplane on curves, and the significance of it is seen Col. ORIN B. MITCHAM, Ordnance Department, from the fact that Mr. Wright could not remember any better previous record than about a minute. When he came down to the ground he said he guessed "that would give the other fellows something to work for."

The flight was made without the use of the falling weight and the starting derrick, which was accidentally knocked down late Saturday afternoon and was porarily in the hospital. Mr. Wright and his pupils estimated the speed of the machine at the end of the trial at twentynine miles an hour. Mr. Wright believed that if he could increase that by two or three miles an hour the machine could rise with two persons aboard without the falling weight
